

What is the Ally Engagement Program?

The Ally Engagement Program provides learning opportunities for university, school, and district leaders looking to transform their school environments to be antiracist, relevant, and responsive to BIPOC leaders, educators, and students. This program is specifically designed to support white leaders in traditional district and university structures on their journey to redefine how they can create and sustain more inclusive environments.

Through our programming, leaders explore a decolonized approach to teaching, mentoring, and leadership, build community with others, and take an active role in dismantling oppressive systems within education.

Benefits of Becoming A Partner

Ally Engagement provides a framework for white leaders who are ready to challenge and redefine the education system in order to cultivate spaces where BIPOC leaders, educators, and students of color thrive.

Our program provides leaders with four bi-monthly Engagements, virtual affinity spaces, ongoing leadership support, as well as early access to register for Network for EdWork's annual Convening.

Framework for Leading

Operationalize antiracist leadership and teaching

Like-Minded Community

Build support and camaraderie centered on social justice

Access to Resources

Receive resources developed specifically for white leaders and educators

Networking Opportunities

Connect with other education leaders

Sample Engagement Topics:

- Building an Antiracist Leadership Practice
- Reflecting on Privilege and Microaggressive Behavior
- Racial Identity Awareness and Development
- The Assimilation Model of Education
- Addressing Racial Trauma