

OVERVIEW

ABOUT TAF

Technology Access Foundation (TAF) is a Seattle-based nonprofit leader redefining K-12 public education in Washington State and beyond. TAF works with public school districts, universities, and community partners to improve learning opportunities and academic achievement for students of color. Through the lens of equity and by using STEM as a tool for social change, our 360-degree approach to public education unravels systemic oppression and makes education a place where everyone wins.

TAF builds equitable classroom environments for students using project-based learning and STEM integration. We provide BIPOC educators, leaders, and white leaders in education with tools and resources to sustain inclusive and equitable schools and increase retention rates. TAF also offers professional development resources for education professionals that are rooted in equity.

BUILDING TOGETHER

Every student carries unlimited potential within them. Yet public schools still uphold oppressive structures that stifle our students and educators, particularly those of color. We need to rebuild these systems to serve the whole population, but what does it take to overhaul education? A commitment to equity as the foundation, followed by a framework of student-centered learning models, all housed within a structure that sustains a diverse education workforce to bring it all together. TAF reshapes the education landscape through programs that support each of these areas, creating safe learning environments for students through STEM integration and future-focused college and career readiness opportunities.

Become a Varsity Luncheon sponsor to lay the groundwork necessary to redefine the public education system piece by piece. Rebuilding takes intention, time, and partnerships. Join us in person at the 2023 TAF Varsity Luncheon and let's come together to rebuild public education!

IMPACT IN 2022-2023

28,415

DID YOU KNOW?

- 91% of all students and 94% of BIPOC students in the US attend public school.
 - TAF improves public school. After 3 years as a TAF TransformED school, 65% more Roosevelt elementary students felt their school was a safe space.
- Students of color make up almost half of public-school students (47%), while only 19% of teachers are of color.
 - TAF diversifies the workforce. Our Martinez Fellowship supports over 300 BIPOC educators throughout Washington.

EVENT SPONSORSHIP

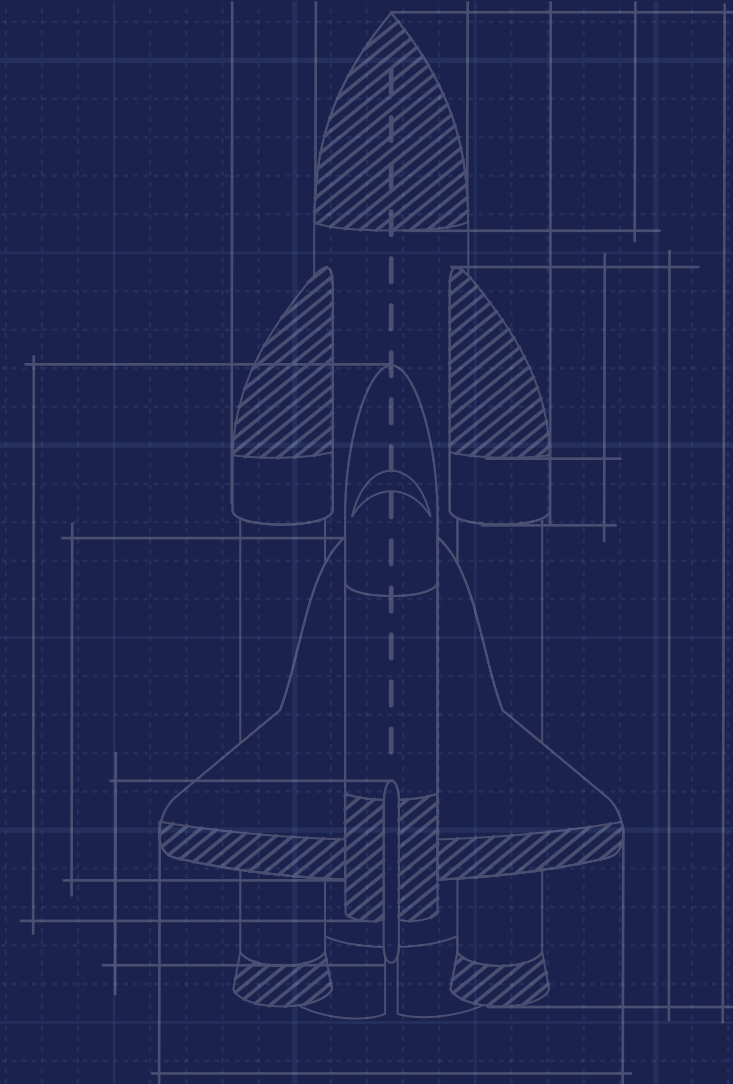

TAKE ACTION NOW – REBUILDING TODAY FOR A MORE EQUITABLE TOMMORROW

Today, TAF alumni are successful professionals impacting everything from commercial travel to environmental research. Our educators continue to grow into administrative leadership roles, inspiring systemic change in districts. Your sponsorship is an investment in tomorrow's STEM leaders. By giving today, you will help expand our program work to rebuild education and create a sustainable, equitable, local pipeline of qualified future changemakers.

YOUR EMPLOYEES ARE ALREADY CONNECTED AND INSPIRED!

45% of TAF's individual gifts are tied to workplace giving, and 87% of our volunteers represent corporate companies. Your partnership provides students constant STEM field exposure, while also advancing your company's brand visibility and alignment with equitable STEM opportunities for communities of color.

There are sponsorship opportunities suitable for organizations of all levels, making it easier for you to support a cause you care about while being mindful of your budget. By becoming a sponsor, you'll be providing employees with the opportunity to engage with a cause that's meaningful to them, while driving real impact.
